

WHERE HAVE I GONE WRONG?

A number of weeks ago an affirmation that was integral to a Sunday lesson/message was shared with those in attendance. It started with a foundational awareness that used the words, “I am created by and out of the Source of the Infinite Universe,” and then using the adverb therefore, it applied what this might mean in our lives concerning the areas of financial supply, awareness and guidance, wellness and health. The view shared was/is that without a logical foundation upon which to rest, any delineation of greater good in any category will not take place in a vibrant and fulfilling way. It is very much like the parable of the house built upon sand or rock. If our God-awareness isn’t solid, and if that awareness doesn’t include our individual experience having a solid connectivity with It and as It, things in our lives will not outpicture the greater good as we would/could envision it to be.

After the Sunday sharing—perhaps a week or two later—someone approached this writer with a sense of failure and frustration saying, “Where have I gone wrong?” Translated: I went home and spoke the affirmation that was shared with me and nothing really happened that I was wanting to happen. While circumstances of the moment didn’t allow for an in-depth conversation to happen, nothing went “wrong,” as much as the process that was shared on that Sunday wasn’t presented or heard as clearly as it might have been.

Our conscious connectivity with Spirit, or the Principle that is ultimate good, existing behind and in all things, is the variable. Spirit or Principle is in and of itself the constant. If it wasn’t this way then a stable foundation from which all things exist cannot be realized to It’s full capacity. Thankfully, as expressions of the Oneness that is in us, through us and as us, we can never stray too far off the Signal, but we can generate a kind of static that doesn’t vibrationally align with this Principle so as to bring the full capacity of what It is to find expression in us and through us.

Usually where we can create static is found within two areas called consistency and compartmentalizing. Consistency speaks to first an acceptance of the logic behind the “by and out of” portion of the affirmation. If that isn’t there, then we are attempting to align with a logic that is vacillating and questionable, hence the direction of the affirmation/energy will have nothing solid within us from which to launch. To have our lives work harmoniously and optimally there can’t be an undercurrent of “questioning” to the “by and out of” preface.

Then, equally important and yet often more illusive to pin down, if our consciousness can be likened to a multi-room building, we can’t successfully think one thing in one of the rooms and another thing in the other rooms. In consciousness there are no compartments. This means, like with consistency, the more we can march to the same drummer with belief, thought, and action the more we offer a non-fragmented foundation upon which to seek, ask and knock. Then, with both consistency and watchfulness, we can be more mindful so as not to compartmentalize our beliefs and allow more co-creative power to flow through us with statements like, “I am created by and out of the Source of the Infinite Universe. My Source knows not confusion, therefore I speak the word of awareness, knowing and perfect timing in my life now!” And, “...My Source knows not sickness therefore, I speak the word of wellness, stability and strength within my body now!” And, “...My Source knows not lack, therefore I speak the word of abundant and tangible financial supply in my life now!”

Do we wait until there is a challenge to begin our process? Of course not. The challenge is there because of some combination of non-consistency and compartmentalization in the first place. The Spiritual Rx is to take the “pill” of focused acceptance morning, noon and night. It is to begin a regiment of setting aside a purposeful time throughout the day, and then to revisit it whenever life appears to need a booster shot because of whatever. It is to stand firm and utterly refuse to ever come to the place where there is even the possibility of saying, “See, I knew it wouldn’t work.” If that cop-out is even an option, it is because it is being kept within a “room” or “compartment” just in case. Why? We all want to be right, so for some this is kept because it provides a type of escape clause, but certainly not fulfillment. Remember, consciousness doesn’t have rooms.

It is a restatement of Jesus’ telling the people not to pray if they have angst against anyone...to go first and clear that up and then come back to pray. Of course! Consciousness doesn’t have rooms or compartments – it is all one. A belief or Truth held anywhere about anything is the basis for everything that we then sense to be our lives, for we are the creators thereof.

Then, it would be said to that person who asked the question, or to anyone reading this sharing, “Where have I gone wrong?” You haven’t! Again, there is no wrong, just a growing opportunity to understand the rules of how consciousness creates our own reality and to re-commit to being a conscious cooperative component to the flow of the Energy that translates as abundance, awareness and strength throughout our lives.

Now 12-1/2 promises of $1000 - 8-1/2 to go!

THIS 'OPPORTUNITY' ISN'T OFTEN shared in this fashion, but if we could find about 18 people who could, within wisdom, give an extra $500 or $1000 we could purchase a small John Deere (or similar) Tractor with attachments that would allow us to do a multitude of things in-house. If this would be something that would be within the wisdom category for you please let Larry know at 577.3300 or unity@unitytucson.com. If/when the number 18 is reached, you will then be contacted and you can fulfill your willingness with a check, credit card or cash. We are always moving sand, digging holes, grading the service entrance...yes, it would be very handy.

She had previously registered in 6 watercolor workshops nationally, flying to each with hotel reservations, only to stay a few days in each and leave in total frustration: ‘You just changed my life! I can do this!!!!!’”
