

MUSING...

WE HAVE AN ON-LINE CAMERA in our family room/kitchen. A smartphone is connected to the camera via a modem and we are notified if it detects movement within its field of view or a loud noise as a telephone ringing or similar. Recently we adopted two very active male cats and they can be remotely seen going and coming. Our garage door is also connected by an App to a smart phone enabling us to open or close it as well as receive information as to its current open or closed condition. What a fantastic world.

Our cats and often a family member (who should be there)...but especially our cats...are totally clueless as to our ability to monitor their activity as they climb on the counters where they should not be, or make treks through and from the cat door to the enclosed north porch. I then often muse as to the vastness of what I cannot imagine that is aware of and perhaps even watching me. Monitoring might be another word in my musing, but I am sure it is done with total love and perhaps a dash of humor.

As I watch an ant or other expression of life going about its business I wonder if they also muse about the possible existence of me? In laboratory studies a photon does different things when it apparently is aware that it is being watched. And, somehow everything is interconnected within a Oneness that must be the "glue" that acknowledges each and all and makes everything work.

Probably many have seen a picture of the vastness of what appears to be the Milky Way and a little sign that points to a speck of light on the periphery, "You are here." And, that speck of light is a solar system... one of an estimated two hundred billion (not a misprint) in the Milky Way galaxy alone. It really puts things in perspective for me. In 1905 Civilla Martin must have sensed something similar and wrote the lyrics for His Eye Is On the Sparrow that echoes Jesus' words found in Mathew 10: 29-31.

Where am I going with this mini-article? For me, my musing has brought many feelings into focus that include humility and grandeur, for I accept that the Milky Way in and of itself is probably one of the smaller galaxies in a Universe that is endless and forever, and the "eye" of the Energy or Source we call God, is the glue that interconnects everything and is constantly acknowledging and responding to even the smallest speck of anything everywhere. Thus, It acknowledges me (Larry)! And, this omnipresent, omniscient and omnipotent Energy in It's acknowledgment, moves not only through me but as me.

Therefore, in this physical body upon a speck of dust and water that is called Earth, I have the humbling task of walking point as the very "glue" Itself expands through my dream, hope, plan and desire. Said another way, I have the responsibilities of being a co-creator with It and as It. Indeed, humility and grandeur are intermixed in me...perhaps they are the same just seen from different moments of musing.

So, now to the feelings of grandeur. I/we are not an disconnected appendage of the Energy we call God, but an integral and eternally connected aspect of It. This is how the Idea-Word-Concept of Oneness shakes out. The writers of our Scriptures have erroneously used the words "worm," "insignificant," "clay," "grass" and beyond, perhaps because they didn't have a Milky Way "You are here" picture as a tool so as to muse as to what all this might mean.

UNITY OF TUCSON'S ART EXHIBIT FEATURES ARTIST PAULA WEECH

"I HAVE ALWAYS been drawn to creativity. I took art all through junior and senior high school but was married right out of high school and did not go on to college. It wasn't until years later, after 25 years of raising children and building a career that I began to spend time painting.

"In the late 1980s, through a serendipitous encounter, I met a gentleman who taught 'meditation painting.' I then began painting occasionally on the weekends as a form of relaxation and meditation. Using the outdoors as my studio, I found that the natural surroundings relaxed and invigorated me. My colors were rarely chosen before the start of a painting, as I allowed my prevailing mood to dictate my palette. Eventually I began to experiment with a variety of papers as my base rather than the large canvases with which I began my artistic journey. My acrylics took on a new life atop fibrous watercolor papers, rice papers, metallic and high gloss paper.

"I started painting more seriously a few years ago, after retiring from my career. No longer physically able to paint large pieces, I have recently begun to learn the process of pouring watercolor on yupo. I find it challenging and energizing as it encourages me to let go of control and allow the paint to merge and flow.

"I don't set out to paint about one subject or another. I paint because it is uplifting to my soul and spirit. I share it with you and hope that you too find joy, peace, excitement and pleasure in my work."
